I'm planning to finish off our basement. At a minimum, what power tools do you recommend?

I'm planning a bathroom remodel and interested in adding some modern technology. Which bathroom technologies are considered the most reliable and low-risk?

When considering technology for your bathroom, it's best to focus on products that have been on the market long enough to be improved and refined. Once you know which products those are, you can decide whether the investment will truly enhance the look, functionality, and everyday experience of your bathroom.

At Bath Barn, we've seen bathroom technologies come and go. That's why we recommend products from brands with a reputation for quality and service. No one wants to deal with issues, but if they arise, it's important that the product is backed by a company that provides reliable service and replacement parts. It's also worth asking: is the product designed to be easily repaired, or will it cause headaches down the road?

Here are a few technologies that we've consistently seen success with:

Digital Shower Valves. Digital shower valves offer a number of benefits. For showers with multiple outlets—such as body sprays, rain heads, or handhelds—they create a cleaner look than having several manual valves on the wall. They also allow for more precise temperature control and even custom presets for different users. Brands like Kohler, Thermasol, and Brizo offer excellent products in this category.

Bidet Toilet Seats. This category is growing rapidly in the U.S. While bidets have been standard in many other countries for years, American homeowners are now realizing the benefits. Bidet toilet seats add comfort and hygiene features such as adjustable wash functions, warm-air dryers, and heated seats. That said, the quality of these products varies, so brand choice matters. We've seen the most consistent performance from Kohler and Toto.

LED Mirrors and Medicine Cabinets. LED mirrors have become one of the fastest-growing bathroom upgrades. They provide excellent task lighting for grooming activities such as make-up application and shaving, while also adding a stylish, modern look. They can even eliminate the need for a separate light fixture. Many models allow you to dim the lighting or adjust the color temperature to suit your mood or time of day. We've had great results with brands such as Fleurco and Kohler.

The Importance of Professional Installation. Perhaps the most important factor when adding technology to your bathroom is who installs it. Some of these products require specialized knowledge, and proper installation can make all the difference in how they function over time. At Bath Barn, our experienced installation team has worked with a wide range of bathroom technologies, ensuring everything is set up correctly and that you'll have reliable support in the future if service is ever needed.

If you're considering incorporating new technology into your bathroom remodel, reach out to us at Bath Barn. We'd be happy to help you design and install the features that will bring both style and function to your space.
